Yale University President Richard C. Levin and
United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan, 2 October 2002

"By devoting the remarkable intellectual resources of this institution to the central phenomena of our time you can help guide us in understanding and grappling with the sweeping changes affecting the world."

United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan, commenting on Yale's international agenda

"As Yale enters its fourth century, our goal is to become a truly global university—educating leaders and advancing the frontiers of knowledge not simply for the United States, but for the entire world.

"The globalization of the University is in part an evolutionary development. Yale has drawn students from outside the United States for nearly two centuries, and international issues have been represented in its curriculum for the past hundred years and more. But creating the global university is also a revolutionary development—signaling distinct changes in the substance of teaching and research, the demographic characteristics of students, the scope and breadth of external collaborations, and the engagement of the University with new audiences."

Richard C. Levin,
President, Yale University
